Job Description

The School of Art, in the J. William Fulbright College of the University of Arkansas, invites applications for an Endowed Associate/Full Professor in Art Education, to start in August 2020.

The newly-developed School of Art aims to create a nationally recognized model for faculty research, teaching, and service. Endowed position holders are expected to develop innovative, collaborative, and interdisciplinary initiatives (both inside and outside the university) and to support the university's mission as a flagship, land-grant university.

The Art Education Program seeks a collaborative, innovative, and critical thinker who is highly engaged in the field of art education with a strong research agenda. The candidate will teach both undergraduate and graduate courses related to art education curriculum and pedagogy, research methodologies, foundations and histories, and contemporary theories. This endowed position also

- Participate in advising, committee work, and other service
- Be a consistently present and active member of the community
- Contribute positively to program and School of Art recruitment efforts

In addition to these duties, endowed faculty are required to:

- engage in a minimum of one outreach effort per year
- maintain a research record appropriate to the prominence of the appointment
- produce an annual report detailing research, service, and teaching metrics and accomplishments

Minimum Qualifications:

- Ph.D. or Ed.D. in art education or a related field from an accredited institution
- Active and nationally significant research record
- Minimum of six years of university-level teaching experience
- Evidence of strong interpersonal and communication skills

Desirable Qualifications:

- Evidence of strong research record relative to diversity, equity, and inclusion
- Demonstrated commitment to community outreach
- Graduate-level teaching and advising experience
- Interest or experience in interdisciplinary and community collaborations
