Job Description

1. Assistant Professor of Architecture

The Hammons School of Architecture at Drury University seeks applicants for a tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor, to begin August 2022. The successful candidate will contribute to a dynamic program and a distinctive educational model that provides rigorous professional education in the context of a flexible curriculum grounded in the liberal arts.

Candidates must demonstrate experience or promise of excellence in design-studio teaching, along with more focused teaching area(s) including but not limited to: introductory design, advanced design representation, and advanced building-materials or building-systems studies.

The ideal candidate will also demonstrate an enthusiasm for interdisciplinary work and for collaboration across the university, as well as the ability to develop or continue a successful pattern of scholarship or critical design practice.

Candidates must hold a graduate degree in architecture, with a PhD desirable. Teaching and/or professional experience as well as licensure are also preferred. Interested candidates should submit (in .pdf format only) an application package comprising a CV, a statement of teaching approach, a portfolio, and names and contact information for three references. The application materials should provide evidence of a commitment to fostering and engaging with a diversity of ideas and experiences in support of an inclusive environment in the classroom and at the University. Applications should be sent to Professor Keith Hedges, Faculty Search Committee Chair (khedges@drury.edu). Review of applications will begin December 1, 2021 and will continue until the position is filled.

2. Two-Year Visiting Assistant Professor of Architecture

The Hammons School of Architecture at Drury University seeks applicants for a non-tenure-track position at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor, to begin August 2022 and extending through the 2023-24 academic year. The successful candidate will contribute to a dynamic program and a distinctive educational model that provides rigorous professional education in the context of a flexible curriculum grounded in the liberal arts.

Candidates must demonstrate experience or promise of excellence in design-studio teaching, along with more focused teaching area(s) including but not limited to: introductory design, advanced design representation, and advanced building-materials or building-systems studies.
