mixture of movement disciplines (e.g., Alexander Technique, Laban, Feldenkrais, Chekhov, Yoga, or Pilates) and stage combat are expected, and the ability to teach acting and directing period styles, including Shakespeare, are desired. Training and expertise in additional movement disciplines (e.g. mask, clowning) and intimacy design/choreography will be viewed favorably. The successful candidate will also be expected to direct departmental productions as part of the regular season; advise and mentor students within our BFA Acting program; and fulfill additional assignments to meet departmental needs. As part of a normal workload, the candidate may be asked to teach online courses. All faculty members are expected to be active in BFA and MFA recruitment, service to the field and institution, and to be active in research/creative scholarship. Excellence in teaching and research/creative endeavors will be expected.

Qualifications: MFA or PhD in Theatre with movement emphasis or MFA in Dance with extensive theatre movement background. Two years of teaching in higher education and some professional experience required.

Rank and salary: Assistant Professor: $48,000-$53,000, depending on experience and qualifications

Application Procedures: Applications will only be accepted on-line at <https://yourfuture.sdbor.edu>. Include on the website a letter of application, curriculum vitae with a link to your website and/or your digital portfolio, statement of teaching philosophy, and the names and phone numbers of three current references.
