The Department of Art at Stony Brook University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor in Printmaking and Drawing, to commence in Fall 2026. We seek an emerging artist-scholar whose creative practice and teaching demonstrate a strong foundation in printmaking, with the potential to bring new perspectives and approaches to the field.

The ideal candidate will demonstrate a deep understanding of both traditional and contemporary printmaking, with proficiency across relief, intaglio, lithography, and screen printing, as well as fluency in emerging practices such as digital printmaking, laser etching, hybrid 2D/3D print processes, and sustainable, non-toxic studio methods. They will have an active creative practice, a record of professional achievement, and a demonstrated commitment to innovative pedagogy and interdisciplinary collaboration. An MFA or equivalent terminal degree is required, with evidence of teaching excellence at the university level.

The successful candidate will sustain and develop the full printmaking curriculum, while also contributing to instruction in drawing. They will teach across the undergraduate and graduate curriculum, from foundational courses to advanced studios and graduate-level seminars, and will supervise MFA students specializing in printmaking and drawing. They will be expected to develop new courses that bring contemporary innovations and eco-conscious approaches into the curriculum, and to foster connections between printmaking and other areas such as Media Arts, Cultural Studies, installation, and socially engaged art. In addition to teaching, the role involves student advising, graduate mentorship, curriculum development, recruitment, and active participation in departmental service and leadership.

Position Responsibilities

- Teach two courses per semester at the undergraduate and graduate levels, including foundational drawing and a full range of printmaking studios.
- Mentor and supervise MFA students in printmaking and drawing.
- Contribute to curriculum development and introduce new courses that reflect innovations in printmaking and its intersections with other areas of art.
- Participate fully in the academic life of the department, including critiques, exhibitions, and service.
- Maintain an active creative practice, with professional exhibitions, projects, and related activities.

Campus Description

Stony Brook University, one of four research-intensive campuses within the State University of New York (SUNY) system, is widely regarded as its flagship. The University embraces its mission to provide comprehensive undergraduate, graduate and professional education of the highest quality, and its rankings bear that out. It's included among the top 1% of universities in the world by the 2018 QS World University Rankings and among the top 40 public universities by U.S. News & World Report's 2020 Best Colleges rankings. It is a member of the prestigious Association of American Universities, composed of the top 62 research institutions in North America. As Long Island's largest single-site employer, Stony Brook has nearly 15,000 full- and part-time employees, including more than 2,700 faculty. It enrolled roughly 26,800 students in fall 2019 - 17,900 undergraduate students and 8,900 graduate students - and offers more than 200 majors, minors and combined-degree programs. The Department of Athletics supports 18 Division I varsity intercollegiate athletic programs that compete at the highest level within the NCAA. Located approximately 60 miles east of Manhattan on Long Island's beautiful North Shore, Stony Brook is situated on 1,454 wooded acres, encompassing 13 schools and colleges; a Research and Development Park; world-class athletics facilities, including an 8,300-seat stadium and a 4,000-seat arena; and Stony Brook Medicine, Long Island's premier academic medical center. Also part of the University is a teaching and research campus in Southampton, New York, which offers graduate arts programs and is the site of the Marine Sciences Center. In addition, Stony Brook has a role in running, and performs joint research with, Brookhaven National Laboratory, the
