FILM DIRECTING

The recruitment is open from assistant to associate professor level on the Aalto tenure track. [\[url=https://www.aalto.fi/en/tenure-track/tenure-track-career-path\]](https://www.aalto.fi/en/tenure-track/tenure-track-career-path)Tenure track career path | Aalto University

Job description

The Professor in Film Directing will focus on teaching and developing artistic practices in film directing. The objective is to prepare students to become highly qualified creative professionals in the field of fiction in film and television. The Professor will be in charge of the MA program in Film Directing and work closely together with the other majors of the Department.

The Department of Film at Aalto offers education in nine majors (specializations): film directing (fiction), screenwriting, film and television producing, film editing, cinematography, film sound design, documentary film, production design, costume design and animation. In addition, education in film history and courses in research skills are offered. The Department is active in practice-based research, providing new theoretical and practical knowledge, insights and approaches to filmmaking. The Department collaborates closely with the University of the Arts Helsinki and other national and international higher education institutions specializing in arts.

The Department encourages its staff to maintain active professional careers as filmmakers. It is possible to work on professional film productions during periodic uncompensated leaves of absence.

Your roles and goals

The tasks of the Assistant/Associate Professor include:

- * Teaching
- * Artistic activity (and possibly also research) in the field
- * Department and School level educational development and administrative tasks

The Professor will co-operate with the Department's faculty, other departments of Aalto and other higher education institutes. Many of the courses in the Department are organized together with other majors. The Professor will also work tightly with the professional field, and create and maintain national, Nordic and international collaboration networks. Furthermore, the Professor will actively develop the major, the Department, and the practiced teaching methods in close collaboration with other faculty members.

Requirements

The professor's position is subject to external evaluation. The applicant is expected to have significant artistic qualifications and practical experience in the field of fiction films and/or television, having directed feature films or television productions that have been professionally distributed (commercial distribution, broadcasting, streaming or festival distribution). Experience in teaching is necessary, and experience in educational development is an advantage. In addition, the applicant is expected to have a solid and well-articulated vision regarding the field and how it should be developed. A commitment to develop the field through teaching and artistic work or research is required.

The applicants will be reviewed based on the following areas: artistic merits, teaching, co-operative skills, and activity and leadership in artistic or academic community. Research and publication activity are considered an asset but are not required. A master's degree relevant to the position is mandatory.

The candidate is expected to be internationally networked and fluent in English. Knowledge of Finnish and/or Swedish is an advantage. The position will require relocation to Finland for candidates not already located in the country.

What we offer

The call is open for a tenure track professor. The position will begin in late autumn 2024, or as agreed.

Depending on the merits of the candidate, the professorship is fixed term or permanent.

We offer you a possibility to work within a widely appreciated and vibrant learning, research, and art & design community. The School of Arts, Design and Architecture has well-equipped infrastructure for research and artistic activities, including several top-class workshop premises. We are located on the Aalto University campus in Otaniemi, Espoo, with several other neighboring research institutions and organizations. The Department students frequently succeed at international competitive festivals both on professional and student levels. The Department is proud of the distinguished careers of its alumna.

The salary will be defined based on the applicant's qualifications and level of position and will follow

ELO Film School Finland / Department of Film

The position is located at the Department of Film. The Department of Film, ELO, is the only university-level film school in Finland. It is a vital combination of innovative art academy and an active, practice-based and artistic research unit. It teaches all aspects of filmmaking and costume design. Our faculty consists of international-level practicing filmmakers, costume designers and researchers.

We value our over 60-year-long tradition but at the same time actively explore future challenges and emerging technologies. The department works closely with the audiovisual industry and costume design in theatre, and emerging contemporary groups in performing arts.

The curriculum draws on artistic and pedagogical traditions, passing them on creatively and developing new forms of expression. During their studies students are familiarized with various artistic processes, teamwork, historical and critical thinking, observations, and interpretations of reality. This knowledge is applied in practical exercises and student film productions.

The department's research brings new understanding of the forms of expression and production processes in cinematic arts and costume design and opens paths to international research. The research orientation is based on a fruitful dialogue between theory and practice.
